HUD Committee Meets to Review Proposed Manufactured Housing Rule Changes

The Manufactured Housing Consensus Committee (MHCC) will meet September 11-13 in Washington, D.C. MHCC is a federal advisory committee charged with providing recommendations to the HUD Secretary on manufactured home construction and safety standards and enforcement regulations, including the Manufactured Home Model Installation Standards, Installation Program Regulations, and Dispute Resolution Program regulations. MHCC has 21 members divided equally between three categories: users; producers; and general interest/public officials.

This will be the first MHCC meeting of any kind in more than a year-and-a-half. The last meeting by phone was December 2016 and the last in-person meeting was October 2016. Things haven't been quiet at HUD's Office of Manufactured Housing Programs during the last year and a half. This meeting is the culmination of a wholesale review of manufactured housing rules ordered in January 2017 and kicked off in January 2018, with a 30-day comment period. A HUD press release described it as "a top-to-bottom review of its manufactured housing rules as part of a broader effort to identify regulations that may be ineffective, overly burdensome, or excessively costly." Industry groups called for this kind of review and even met with top officials like HUD Secretary, Ben Carson, to discuss it.

Ahead of this meeting, the Office of Manufactured Housing released:
